Warren's Two Positions

Chief Justice Earl Warren probably has received more citicism than any man who ever held the highest judicial post in the United States. This criticism is based mainly on the fact that Warren. by "judicial legislation," has done more to change the Constitution of the United States than anycone except the Congress and the people. And, in shaking the Conatitution so violently, Warren has Ishown a complete reversal from his previously expressed position. Everett M. Dirksen, Senate Republican leader, wants to know why. So do we.

Chipping away at states' rights by the Warren court has been piece-meal, but its focal point in recent years has been the socalled one-man, one-vote issue, a concept definitely not desired by the framers of the Constitution of the United States.

Federally directed, Court-guided legislative redistricting has stirred a nationwide storm and has thrown the legislatures of practically every state in the union into a dither. Trying to salvage what little they could of states' rights by doing their own redistricting, the legislators have had a bad time. Some have thrown up their hands and said: "Let the courts do it." Generally our disposition has been to go slow in accepting changes we consider unconstitutional and the Supreme Court action on redistricting is one of them

Senator Dirksen has campaigned with considerable success for a constitutional convention to review this issue. Recently he raised the question of why Warren is so strongly opposed to the right of states to decide for themselves how their legislatures shall be composed, or the right of cities and counties to say how they will elect officials

In 1948, when he was governor of California, Warren said: "I have rever been in favor of restricting the representation in the (State) Senate on a strict'y population basis." He gave as his reason "the same reason that the Founding Fathers of our country gave balanced representation to the states . . . equal representation in one house and proportionate representation based on population in the other."

That was in 1948 and Warren was a governor. In 1964, as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, he wrote the opinion that held that both houses of a state legislature must be apportioned on a popula-

That, of course, is contrary to the system in the Congress of the United States. Members of the lower house are apportioned on a population basis but in the Senate there are two members from each state. That prevents a half-dozen big states from telling the entire nation what the laws of the whole nation shall be. It is a system inaugurated under the Consti-

If one national house can be apportioned equally for all states and another on a population basis, what is unfair about the same arrangement for the states? If Warren says both state houses must be apportioned on a population basis, how long will it be before he thinks the two houses of Congress should be apportioned

The truth is that Warren probably took his position of one-man. one vote for the state legislatures because he thought he could shake up the system without causing so much furor that Congress would act to upset the ruling. If he had made that decision first in regard to the Congress, there is scant doubt Congress would have acted to overrule him.

Why has Warren changed his mind in regard to the state legislatures? "I haven't the slightest idea." Dirksen said. States struggling to reapportion under the eves of court wonder too. When there is wonder, there is also "nationalized" because he holds a national position or does he merely enjoy causing an uproar for publicity's sake?

JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Dodd's Four Former Employees Criticized

THE CASE OF TOM Dodd is simmering just now on the back of the Senate stove, while the Senator prepares his defense against the pending resolution of censure. It is as good a time as any to inquire: What ever became of the four civic guardians who got him into this mess? They ought not to be ig-

To be sure, their cases are quite separate. Dodd has to be judged on his own conduct, wholly apart from the conduct of James P. Boyd, Marjorie Carpenter, Terry Golden, and Michael O'Hare. But I have written a good deal about the Dodd case as such, and may be coming back to it when the Senate takes it up on June 13. My own feeling, after a careful review of the Ethics Committee record, is that Dodd probably should be acquitted under the rule of reasonable doubt; but a verdict of guilty could be almost as well defended. For the moment, so much for Senator Dodd.

What about the sticky-fingered four? Boyd went to work for Dodd in 1958 and rose to be his top administrative aide. Mrs. Carpentar, who was to become the Lady Macbeth of this affair, came on the staff in July of 1961 as the Senator's personal secretary. Jim and Marj got to be chums. From

Q. YOU HAD a social relationship with Mr. Boyd since 1963, have you not?

Mrs. Carpenter. Yes, sir. Q. And he is important to you?

Mrs. Carpenter. Yes, sir. In December of 1964, Dodd fired both of them for "grave misconduct no Senator could have tolerated." Over a period of the next several months, the two were overcome by shame at Dodd's abuse of his high position. They obtained a duplicate key from a girl still working in the office. They got in touch with those pillars of public virtue, Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson. And over the weekend of June 12-13. 1965. when they began lugging the papers away, their strength was as the strength of ten, because their hearts were pure.

"I felt I had a public duty," Boyd told the ethics committee. He took no pleasure out of what he did. To expose the Senator 'caused me a great deal of pain." He had, in fact, "loved the Senator like a father." But Jack Anderson was whispering in one ear and Marjorie was whispering in the other. So, "I entered the Senator's office for the purpose of removing documents, copying them, returning them, and making them available to the public and to the authorities.'

DID HE SUFFER any qualms of conscience? No, indeed. "I believe that never at any time in my life did I more deeply demonstrate my belief in Americanism and in the support of the integrity of our free insti-mer of 1965, little birds began to whisper in the Senator's ear.

He was thunderstruck. Someone

he said, is stealing my files.

Meanwhile, late in the sumtutions than in those days.

He turned to his faithful bookkeeper, young Master O'Hare, and asked for his thoughts on the matter. Ain't nobody here but us chickens, boss, the guile-less youth replied. Well, said Dodd, let us change the locks anyhow. And this O'Hare arranged, thoughtfully preserving a spare key for himself. Whereupon, he and his honeybun, Miss Golden, joined the paper safari. Senator Stennis asked Boyd if he had considered that his acts might be a violation of criminal law. Boyd said he thought there was such a possibility, yes, sir, but he was what I thought to be the doing right thing to do, and therefore it could not be illegal if it was morally right." and anyhow, "I just thought when all considerations were weighed, that this weight would prosecuted." HOW RIGHT HE has proved to be! The reporter who inquires of the local District Attorney's office finds that no charges of any sort have been filed against the four. At the Department of Justice, the official word is that the department "is still considering the case." The inference one draws from a Justice spokes. man is that it may be tough to find a charge that will stick. The documents, after all, were not exactly stolen; they were only taken for a joy-ride and returned. The four conspirators made no personal profit from their high-minded larceny. Boyd and Mrs. Carpentar clearly effected an unauthorized entry, of but was it an illegal entry?

These are nice questions for lawyers to ponder. The rest of us, sitting in the press gallery, can only reflect upon the irony of justice that sees a Senator on trial for his political life, and his betrayers sauntering scotfree about Washington, full of purity, sweetness and light.

In the view of the militants who are carrying his black power banner, the way is through the barrel of a gun, along the blade of a knife or the edge of a club. Their philosophical light is the flame of a gasoline bomb.

Every outrage which Negroes have protested in the past oppression of their own people is now being openly advocated by those who have twisted the civil rights movement out of all recognition, turning it into a new form of lynch law, of racist, inexcusable brutality.

THE LAPSE INTO barbarism can achieve nothing but disaster. It already has set the cause of Negro justice back a decade. Transcally, these advocates of muscle - morality have closed their ears to every word that they consider white. To everyone whose political creed is rooted in a belief in the use of force to coerce people to do things, good or bad, a violence or the threat of violence seems a perfectly acceptable means of social protest.

THUS, WHEN Vice . President Hubert Humphrey says that, unless the sort of programs which his administration proposes are enacted, there will be riots and bloodshed, he is virtually blackmailing the nation He is simply revealing that to him the threat of violence is a political tool to be manipulated rather than a civil outrage to be condemned out of hand and not in any way compromised or coddled. Blackmailers cannot be bought off by giving in to their demands. And violence cannot be bought off by offering rewards to rioters. Also, when the national secretary of the socialistic Students for a Democratic Society is quoted as saying that "We are working to build a guerrilla force in an urban environment, he is revealing that force always has been an essential tool of those who mean to mold men in their own political image.

THESE SEDITIONISTS (their own word) of the socialist movement in America have only brought into ugly sight what has been the basis of socialism all along - th use of force to gain political ends and to enforce political patterns. Governor Warren P. Knowles, who used a yellow pen with yellow fink to sign the repeal bill, said the event was "quite a milestone in Wisconsin history." And, indeed it was, since the prohibition had been in effect nearly three-quarters of a century.

There are those who can remember when margarine or oleo that was already colored could not be bought in Louisiana but that was a good many years ago. At that time, the packages carried little plastic containers, looking somewhat like big raindrops, filled with coloring which could be mixed with the oleo.

Before prohibitory laws were enacted, margarine was commonly labelled "butter." Sponsored by dairy interests, laws were enacted to prohibit the use of the name "butter" and also to prohibit the use of coloring to make the product resemble yellow butter.

Such laws lasted longer in the dairying states and were ended sooner, if ever enacted, in states, such as those in the South, where vegetable oils and margarine were produced.

So, in effect, these surplus grain and other food "sales" actually were give-aways paid for by U.S. taxpayers.

In every instance this aid saved these countries from grim food shortages, and at the same time powerfully bulwarked their shaky economies. Without this U.S. food untold thousands of men, women and children in these lands would have suffered dire hunger and privations.

"UNCLE SUCKER" - The most vitriolic Arab beneficiary has received the most U.S. aid. Since 1957 Egypt's share totals more than $1.133 billion. Of this, $902.2 million has been in surplus food; the remainder in long-term, low-interest loans

In many instances repayment of U. S. loans is in local currency that remains in Egypt. Of the dollar loans Nasser is milbons in default on scheduled payments.

Surplus food shipments to Egypt soared under President

In his three years in office, they totaled $398.9 million. In 1961 they jumped to $82.5 milion from $42.7 million under President Eisenhower. In 1962 they again more than doubled to $174.5 million. In 1963 they declined somewhat to $141.9 mil-

'In November 1964," the committee reported, " a two-year agreement was entered into between the U.S. and the United Arab Republic whereby surplus grains were to be furnished under Title IV of Public Law 480. TAX INCENTIVES - The Administration, which frankly uses a tax break to stimulate industrial output in slack times, is devoting increasing efforts to head off demands for tax incentives for other purposes. Awaitaction are dozer bills aimed at amending the tax laws to foster everything from installation of air pollution control devices to helping parents of college students. Assistant Treasury Secretary Stanley S. Surrey recently attacked the whole approach as unsound because it disguises the true cost of these programs. Besides, he said, it's doubtful "the tax system could survive the cumulative weakening of its strength and fairness that would be involved in this massive use of tax incentives." Most popular of the proposals is the deduction for college expenses, which was co-sponsored by nearly half the Senate. The plan narrowly escaped being adopted last month and is bound to be offered again before Congress

GOVERNMENT LAND Representative Julia B. Hansen, Democrat, Washington, chairman of the Interior Department sub-committee of the House Appropriations Committee has compiled figures showing that a total of 754,288,432 acres, or nearly one third of the Nation's land, is Federal Government owned and managed. Biggest slice of it is under the Bureau of Land Management - 457,102. 198 acres. Others include: Forest Service, 186,500,000 acres; Bureau of Indian Affairs, 55,294,080 acres; Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, 28,930, 169 acres; National Park Servce, 26,551,432 acres.

GROWTH INDUSTRY - Federal Government continues to be a growth industry with the number of civilian Federal employees moving toward the 3.000,000 mark. Total now employed is 2,852,796. Creation of more than 50,000 new employees are being sought in fiscal money bills now pending in Congress. Between now and 1975, it is estimated, nearly 900,000 professional, administrative and technical employees will be recruited. Part of these will be new positions, but mostly they will be replacements of persons UPDATING STATE CONSTI-TUTIONS - A Constitutional rewriting the logvention charter of New York and similar conventions will soon be under way in Pennsylvania and Maryland. Michigan redrafted its Constitution in 1961-62. And the littlest of the States is having the most difficult time trying to streamline its State Gov ernment. Rhode Island's convention has been in session two years. On the other hand, Connecticut, whose 1818 Constitution was the oldest in the Nation, finished its rewriting job in quick time.

when it was receiving wheat from the U.S. which it used for domestic consumption instead of rice normally consumed.

The Department of State knew about these violations, of the law and written agreement, but did absolutely nothing about . The State Department either finds a rationale for condoning the violations, or simply takes no action against country which has violated its agreement not to ship foodstuffs to Communist countries during the period it is receiving food assistance from the U.S.

The Senate committee charged that while Nasser used U.S. surplus wheat, which he got in effect for nothing, to meet domestic needs, he exported Egyptian rice to Communist countries as follows: Russia 131,000 metric tons; Red China 20,000; Cuba 62,000 Czechoslovakia 24,000: Poland 16,000; Rumania 17,000; Yugoslavia 16,000; East Germany 13,000; Hungary 6,000; Bulgaria 4,000; Indonesia 52,000; Syria 20,000; Lebanon 13,000; Iraq 4,000.

Economic aid to this small country totals $517.2 million. Of this an unspecified amount is for budget balancing. Throughout the many years the U.S. has been balancing Jordan's budget its own budget has been billions in the red.

In addition to economic aid. Jordan has received $55.6 million in military assistance. The other three Arab beneficiaries have obtained the fol-

SYRIA - $73.2 million in economic aid; $100,000 in military assistance. Most of the economic aid has been in surplus food, with the remainder in longlow-interest loans and credits, virtually all repayable in local currency. In words, like the food "sales," they are actually give-aways.

IRAQ - $102.7 million in economic and military aid. The bulk of the former has been in surplus food. Most of the $46.6 million in military assistance was in 1953 to 1958 when the country was a monarchy. In the last several years U.S. aid to Iraq has dropped to little than $5 million annually. LEBANON - $87.9 million in this total only $8.7 million has been for military assistance. Virtually all of the remainder has been in loans and credits, of which $4.7 million has been re-

In all of these Arab countries the best-kept secret is the immense quantities of food the U.S. has given them. The mass of people have no awareness of that, as the authorities do not publicire it and the U.S. does little or nothing to make it

On the other hand, Nasser and the other Arab rulers loudly and continuously extol aid from Russia and other Commumist countries.

The Senate committee report ed that the Egyptian press and radio made a great to-do when a Soviet freighter unload ed a smal shipment of wheat at Alexandria. But a few weeks later when $17 million of U.S. grain arrived, not one word was said about that.

The Senate investigators es tablished that Nasser barred all publicity about U.S. aid. The same policy is enforced in the other Arab countries.

PREDICTIONS - President Johnson will issue an executive order abolishing draft exemp tions for graduate students. This Dodd's Four Former Employees Criticized

JAMES J. KILPATRICK

THE CASE OF TOM Dodd is of the Senate stove, while the Senator prepares his defense against the pending resolution of censure. It is as good a time as any to inquire: What ever became of the four civic guardians who got him into this mess? They ought not to be ig-

To be sure, their cases are quite separate. Dodd has to be judged on his own conduct, wholly apart from the conduct of James P. Boyd, Marjorie Carpenter, Terry Golden, and Michael O'Hare. But I have written a good deal about the Dodd case as such, and may be coming back to it when the Senate takes it up on June 13. My own feeling, after a careful review of the Ethics Committee record, is that Dodd probably should be acquitted under the rule of reasonable doubt: but a verdict of guilty could be almost as well defended. For the moment, so much for Senator Dodd.

What about the sticky-fingered four? Boyd went to work for Dodd in 1958 and rose to be top administrative aide. Mrs. Carpentar, who was to become the Lady Macbeth of this affair, came on the staff in July of 1961 as the Senator's personal secretary. Jim and Marj got to be chums. From the record:

Q. YOU HAD a social relationship with Mr. Boyd since 1963, have you not?

Mrs. Carpenter. Yes, sir. Q. And he is important to you?

Mrs. Carpenter. Yes, sir. In December of 1964, Dodd fired both of them for "grave misconduct no Senator could have tolerated." Over a period of the next several months, the two were overcome by shame at Dodd's abuse of his high position. They obtained a duplicate key from a girl still working in the office. They got in touch with those pillars of public virtue, Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson. And over the weekend of June 12-13, 1965, when they began lugging the papers away, their strength was as the strength of ten, because their hearts were pure.

"I felt I had a public duty," Boyd told the ethics committee. He took no pleasure out of what he did. To expose the Senator "caused me a great deal of pain." He had, in fact, "loved the Senator like a father." But Jack Anderson was whispering in one ear and Marjorie was whispering in the other. So, "I

entered the Senator's office for the purpose of removing documents, copying them, returning them, and making them available to the public and to the authorities."

DID HE SUFFER any qualms of conscience? No, indeed. "I believe that never at any time in my life did I more deeply demonstrate my belief in Amer-icanism and in the support of the integrity of our free institutions than in those days. Meanwhile, late in the summer of 1965, little birds began to whisper in the Senator's ear. was thunderstruck. Someone he said, is stealing my files. He turned to his faithful book keeper, young Master O'Hare, and asked for his thoughts on the matter. Ain't nobody here but us chickens, boss, the guile-less youth replied. Well, said Dodd, let us change the locks anyhow. And this O'Hare arranged, thoughtfully preserving a spare key for himself. Whereupon, he and his honeybun, Miss Golden, joined the paper safari. Senator Stennis asked Boyd

if he had considered that his acts might be a violation of criminal law. Boyd said he thought there was such a possibility, yes, sir, but he was doing "what I thought to be the right thing to do, and therefore it could not be illegal if it was morally right." and anyhow, "I just thought when all considerprosecuted." ations were weighed, that this

HOW RIGHT HE has proved to be! The reporter who inquires of the local District Attorney's office finds that no charges of any sort have been filed against the four. At the Department of Justice, the official word is that the department "is still considering the case." The inference one draws from a Justice spokes. man is that it may be tough to find a charge that will stick. The documents, after all, were not exactly stolen; they were only taken for a joy-ride and returned. The four conspirators made no personal profit from their high-minded larceny. Boyd and Mrs. Carpentar clearly effected an unauthorized entry, but was it an illegal entry? These are nice questions for lawyers to ponder. The rest of us, sitting in the press gallery, can only reflect upon the irony of justice that sees a Senator on trial for his political life, and his betrayers sauntering scotfree about Washington, full of purity, sweetness and light.

Violence, Blackmail Cannot Be Condoned

VIOLENCE, lawlessness and blackmail cannot be excused for any reason of race, color or creed. And yet those very reasons are being used today to justify and encourage all of those assaults against civilized

The racial reasons are obvious. Such hate - and - violence mongers as Stokely Carmichael now preach that Negroes in America must no longer seek justice, but must instead grab raw, naked power. In the view of the militants who are carrying his black power banner, the way is through the barrel of a gun, along the blade of a knife or the edge of a club. Their philosophical light is the flame of a gasoline bomb. Every outrage which Negroes have protested in the past oppression of their own people is now being openly advocated by those who have twisted the civil rights movement out of all recognition, turning it into a new form of lynch law, of racist, inexcusable brutality.

THE LAPSE INTO barbarism can achieve nothing but disaster. It already has set the cause of Negro justice back a decade.

Tragically, these advocates of muscle - morality have closed their ears to every word that they consider white. The crucial question is whether they will heed the overwhelming majority of Negroes who, as passionately as other sober citizens, reject violence. It now depends upon just that to call a halt to the Governor Romney will address a Republican fund-raising dinner in Lincoin, Neb., June 23, while Governor Reagan will star at the Young Republicans convention Congress will take a two-week vacation starting June 30. Many members favor shutting down through all of August, but Democratic leaders turned that down because of the war in Vietnam and the lagging legislative pace . are not as obvious but are nevertheless as real.

To everyone whose political creed is rooted in a belief in the use of force to coerce people to do things, good or bad, # violence or the threat of violence seems a perfectly acceptable means of social protest.

THUS, WHEN Vice - President Hubert Humphrey says that, unless the sort of programs which his administration proposes are enacted, there will be riots and bloodshed, he is virtually blackmailing the nation. He is simply revealing that to him the threat of violence is a political tool to be manipulated rather than a civil outrage to be condemned out of hand and not in any way compromised or coddled. Blackmailers cannot be bought off by giving in to their demands. And violence cannot be bought off by offering rewards to rioters.

Also, when the national secretary of the socialistic Students for a Democratic Society is quoted as saying that "We are working to build a guerrilla force in an urban environment," he is revealing that force always has been an essential tool of those who mean to mold men in their own political image.

THESE SEDITIONISTS (their own word) of the socialist movement in America have only brought into ugly sight what has been the basis of socialism all along - th use of force to gain political ends and to enforce political patterns. The SDA official says that the threat of violence "characterizes the current radicalization of the new because of the reimbursement But dispensing with costs con sidered minor, who will get what, if the tax passes? The formula is involved, but amounts, based on 1965 - 66 sales, can be pinned down with fair accuracy. The top 60 per cent, $3.1 mil lion, of an estimated total take of $5.2 million is marked for the school boards, primarily for teacher pay raises. Based on average daily membership, the board breakdown would look like

Catahoula Parish, $114,069 oncordia, $215,983; Caldwell, $74,487; East Carroll, $136,820; Jackson, $133,704; Franklin $243,098; Lincoln, $209,438; Madison, $158,325; Morehouse, $313, 222; Ouachita, $551,646; Monroe. $340,337; Richland, 228,138; Tensas, $114,069; Union, $157,

The division in Ouachita of the $1.3 million will give the two school boards 15 per cent, or $233,748, to share on the basis of average daily membership (Quachita would get some 61.8 per cent of the amount, the Monroe board 38.1 per cent.)

The remainder, considered as 100 per cent, would be divided thusly: Monroe, 63 per cent, $834,482; West Monroe, 18 per cent, $238,423; Ouachita Police Jury, 18 per cent, $238,423; and Sterlington, one per cent, $13,-

How did the term "poka dots" originate? Should this be spelled "polka dots?" Does the Polish immigrant have anything to do with this term?

The correct spelling is "pokla", although with the usage, particularly in the South, the "I" has become almost silent. The Encyclopaedia Britannica says "polka dots" is a design with continuous usage of dots, either solid or circled. It is believed that the pattern came from designs of the polka, or round dance of Bohemia, Couples, dancing in close circles, formed dots about the floor giving the "polka dot" patterns as we know them today. The word "polka originally is a varia tion of the Czech variation of "pulka", meaning step.

So you see, Mr. X, how your uncle fitted into this observed pattern. Although it is impossible to prevent many suicides, it is understandable that some might be prevented by anticipating how some alcoholics might react to such crises as divorce, separation and death.

He said that "probably most normal people have had suicidal or homicidal thoughts at

However, they should be taken seriously, if they talk about their intent in the doctor's office. Especially if they say how they are going to do it: If they have been to the top of a high building to look over the site of suicide: if they have saved up pills for the final event; if they say they have bought some rubber hose to fit to the car's Especially serious thought and action should be given to a patient who is talking suicide "again"—one who has previously tried and failed.

Dr. Solomon said, "If a physician feels that the patient is actively suicidal his duty is obvious. Hospitalization must certainly be considered seriously and the relatives consulted. A psychiatric consultation should be the rule. The physician must remain with the case, with or without the patient's consent, until the burden of responsibility is clearly taken up by someone else.

RANKS TENTH

Such responsibility is especially important now when the suicide rate in the U.S. is the tenth cause of death. (In 1920 it ranked 22nd). Among college students, probably because of stress of work, suicide ranks second as a cause of death. Highest suicide rates are found in Hungary, Austria, Finland, West Germany, Denmark, Sweden, Switzerland, Japan, France. ## Social Attitudes Of Baptist Listed

By DR. IRVING WARD -STEINMAN

"At East in Zion: Social attitudes of Southern Bap-tists, 1865-1900," by Rufus B. Spain, Vanderbilt University Press, 36 pages, $6.95. If you have been puzzled by the thinking of Southern Baptists, and seek the reason, this book could be the richest source of information written on the subject. The author is history professor at Baylor University, Waco, a native Southerner, and a Baptist. His credentials are excellent. He does not attempt to prove or disprove the thinking of the Southern Baptists, but to analyze and give the back-

For his sources of information he went to the official Baptist JOURNALS of the 12 Southern states. From Louisiana, he had the "Baptist Chronicle" from Shreveport, Ruston and Alexandria, for 1886, 1888-1900, and the 'Minutes" of the Louisiana Baptist convention for 1848,

What caused the 'break' between the Northern and Southern Baptists? Slavery. The Southern Baptist Convention came into being in May, 1845, due essentially to the "Boston Board" selecting abolitionists as missionaries. The founding of the Southern unit was for the purpose of unifying the Southern Baptists in promoting foreign and domestic missions and other important aspects connected with the "Redeemer's kingdom."

Dr. Rufus B. Spain, the author, presents a highly

The views concerning white and white, and white and colored, North and South, are starkly detailed with no soft pedaling. Southern Baptists blew "hot and cold." They qualified everything with a "but," yet by 1900 they had arrived at an awareness of social consciousness, however limited. This is a saga of a peoplethe Southern Baptists. Why they acted as they did; what they thought; what they based their theology upon, are unveiled. In a gloved fashion, Dr. Spain is honorably ruthless. The story of the Louisiana lottery is unbelievably candid pages 153-154, as well as the conviction of Southern Baptists "that the cause of the Confederacy was in harmony with the will of

This is fascinating history; nothing dry or academic, and Dr. Spain writes with humor and insight. Inflexible concepts of race relations continued unchanged in the South after the War for Southern Independence and the Civil Rights Bill of 1875 received the full impact of unleashed Baptist fury. Social "coercion" was one unifying phase binding the opposition together.

Social Attitudes Of Baptist Listed

By DR. IRVING WARD -STEINMAN

Louisiana Book Shelf

"At East in Zion: Social attitudes of Southern Baptists, 1865-1900," by Rufus B. Spain, Vanderbilt University Press, 36 pages, $6.95.

If you have been puzzled by the thinking of Southern Baptists, and seek the reason, this book could be the richest source of information written on the subject.

The author is history professor at Baylor University, Waco, a native Southerner and a Baptist. His credentials are excellent. He does not attempt to prove or disprove the thinking of the Southern Baptists, but to analyze and give the background. For his sources of information he went to the official Baptist JOURNALS of the 12 Southern states. From Louisiana, he had the "Baptist Chronicle" from Shreveport, Ruston and Alexandria, for 1886, 1888-1900, and the "Minutes" of the Louisiana Baptist convention for 1848,

What caused the 'break' between the Northern and Southern Baptists? Slavery. The Southern Baptist Convention came into being in May, 1845, due essentially to the "Boston Board" selecting abolitionists as mis-

white and white, and white and colored, North and South, are starkly detailed with no soft pedaling. Southern Baptists blew "hot and cold." They qualified everything with a "but," yet by 1900 they had arrived at an awareness of social consciousness, however limited. This is a saga of a people the Southern Baptists.

Why they acted as they did; what they thought; what they based their the ology upon, are unveiled. In a gloved fashion, Dr. Spain is honorably ruthless. The story of the Louisiana lottery is unbelievably candid pages 153-154, as well as the conviction of Southern Baptists "that the cause of the Confederacy was in harmony with the will of
